

CM 400: Identities Communication: Race, Class, Gender, Sexuality

An exploration of historical and political conditions that make intercultural communication possible, the barriers that exist to effective intercultural communication, and possible solutions to the problem of intercultural misunderstanding, between/within cultures. Issues of race, nation, class, gender, religion, immigration, and sexual orientation will be of significant concern.

Hours: 3

Prerequisites:

CM 100.

Program: Communication Studies

Semester Offered:

Spring even