

CN 516: Addictions Counseling

This course focuses on the nature and development of addiction as both an individual and societal problem, with special attention to the properties of addiction, the physical consequences of misuse and treatment issues and skills. This class provides the necessary foundational skills to work with individual who misuse and abuse substances along with understanding the addiction cycle process.

Hours: 3

Program: Community Counseling

Semester Offered:

Spring