

EN 160: Literature and Composition

A continued emphasis upon the principles of expository writing and research established in EN 130. Students will utilize the process method to draft and revise well-developed essays. Students will develop skills for synthesizing primary and secondary texts in research papers, a close reading/explication and/or an annotated bibliography according to MLA standards. In doing so, students will examine the basic genre elements of various literature with selected works used as the basis for discussions, lectures, and student writing. C or higher required.

Hours: 3

Prerequisites:

C or better in EN 130.

Program: English

Semester Offered:

Fall,

Spring,

Online - Spring