

HN 490: Humanity and Moral Responsibility

Utilizing concepts and frameworks drawn from religious and/or philosophical approaches to ethics, this course examines the nature of human moral responsibility with regard to one or more contemporary issues through primary texts and individual research projects. Possible topics to be addressed may include but are not limited to, the ethics of healthcare systems, climate change, criminal justice/the death penalty, and economic justice.

Hours: 3

Prerequisites:

HN 100 or HN 300

Program: Honors

Semester Offered:

Spring