

MU 100: Intro to Music Studies

This course is designed as a recitation section for all freshman music majors during their first semester on campus. Topics covered include proper rehearsal and concert etiquette, practice expectations, time management for the practicing musician, scheduling issues, and practical tips about how to function as a professional musician or music educator. Select students will be required to perform their studio repertoire each week in front of their peers. Students' grades and performance in all of their music classes will be monitored weekly and deficiencies will be addressed individually during this class time.

Hours: 1

Program: Music

Semester Offered:

Fall