

NU 510: Pathophysiology For Advanced Nursing Practice

Emphasis the principles of physiology and pathophysiology impacting disease states and health outcomes across the lifespan. Knowledge gained from this course will help students interpret normal from abnormal changes that occur with altered health states. Provides the student with advanced knowledge using physiological principles for clinical assessment/diagnosis, decision making, and identifying ways to help with disease prevention.

Hours: 4

Program: Nursing

Semester Offered:

Fall,

Spring,

Summer