

PS 250: Issues and Cases in Bureaucratic Politics

This course deals with dimensions of public organization and administration: the effects of social change on bureaucracy, the political environment as it affects administration, and policy and problems connected with science and planning as they in turn affect social and political life.

Hours: 3

Program: Political Science

Semester Offered:

Fall odd