

PY 322: Physiological Psychology

Biological basis of behavior including: the anatomy and physiology of brains and neurons, motor systems, sensation and perception across multiple sensory systems, hormone systems and sexual behavior, sleep and other regulatory behaviors (hunger/thirst), cognitive functions (learning, memory, attention, executive function), and the biological basis of psychological disorders (including drug based therapies).

Hours: 4

Fees: $20 course fee.

Prerequisites:

PY100 and BI104.

Program: Psychology

Semester Offered:

Spring even years