

RE 100: Introduction to World Religions

This course is an introductory examination of several major religions and worldviews. Attention will be given to the religious significance of human life through discussion of a range of questions including, but not limited to: What is the meaning, the aim of our life? What is sin? What is the road to happiness? What are death, judgment? Students will be encouraged to broaden their worldview in response to the people, forces and things that surround us.

Hours: 3

Program: Religion

Semester Offered:

Fall,

Spring,

Online - Spring